Home ground win for photo experience startup

Shooting in Morocco, Mali and many other reportage locations Suzanne Porter has learned the value of knowing the ground.

Now with her business development expert husband she's created a new photo experience service to link enthusiasts and selected photo tutors with first-hand knowledge of locations worldwide.

Joining a proven and recommended group leader or learning one-to-one means you get on-the-ground knowledge and support. The photographers offer their favourite shooting locations and all have unique skills to pass on.

Neighbouring towns or villages can have their own resident group leader, often with a different specialisation, giving a wide choice. Variety/diversity is one of klik-trip's USP's. They can have 5 photographers in the same town (eg Marrakech) each different and offering their unique style.

As well as offering photo experiences worldwide, many offer tuition to local photo enthusiasts looking to improve their skills from digital to pinhole and darkroom work. Tailor-made tours can also be arranged. You can even hire a photographer on a day-rate as a personal guru.

The photographers are selected after recommendation only, with checks and references to ensure good service. klik-trip is free for customers to use, with advanced security protection and easy navigation, topped with a promise, the customer will not get it cheaper if they go direct, the klik-trip buying experience is simple to use giving the customers peace of mind.

klik-trip (www.klik-trip.com) launched in January 2019 has signed up over 70 photo leaders with Morocco, one of Suzanne's favourite destinations, kicking off the programme. The worldwide roster of photographers offered on klik-trip is growing by five or more every month.
